Deputized (1h26m, Brooklyn, NY) DVD
Monday, July 22nd, 2013 2:30pm Film Block

In a deceptively peaceful Long Island town just before midnight on November 8, 2008, 37-year-old Ecuadorian immigrant Marcelo Lucero is assaulted by a group of teen-aged boys cruising the streets, a decade-long ritual of attacking Latinos for sport. The adolescent "game" comes to an end with the fatal stabbing of Lucero, exposing a thinly veiled systemic intolerance for immigrants. Seventeen-year-old Jeffery Conroy, a popular high school athlete, is sentenced to 25-years for a hate crime, while the other teens get 5 to 8-years behind bars. The local government, the press and the community agree that the problem is solved and justice has been served. All is well again in this haven of American suburbia. Or so it seems. Director/Producer: Susan Hagedorn. Documentary. Feature Film. Long Island Film. World Premiere. (Violence. Profanity)
